

Promote Your Business to the World!

With a Hands-Free, Hassle-Free Website by Adverteria

Today every business needs a website. Simply put, the internet is the new phone book and your website is the company brochure. We create websites that promote your business and services (the brochure). And, we make sure your business is available in the search engines.

If a price changes, or you add a new product, simply email us about it, and we'll take care of updating your website right away. Our customer support team is available 7 days a week, just email questions or site changes to: support@adverteria.com.

TIP: On the Internet, LESS is MORE!

Most people who visit a website want to know four things: who, what, where and how much. So keep it simple: List your service offerings, location details, prices and specials; and, perhaps something unique about your operation. Also, avoid flashy animations and big stock photos—while they may look pretty the first time, they slow down your website and detract from your business message. Remember, people are visiting your website to learn more about your company's products and/or services, not to see a show. You want visitors to be able to get the information they want quickly and easily, and not have to hunt around all over the place.

We've been creating business websites since 1996; and we always design with sales in mind. So, before you pay an arm and a leg to some fast-talking salesman promising the world, call us (814) 536-2065 or contact@adverteria.com
